International Construction Magazine

Adrian Greeman, freelance writer and photographer in the UK, is looking at major tunnel projects worldwide for an article in International Construction Magazine. Greeman contacted KaDeena Lenz with the Alaskan Way Viaduct and Seawall Replacement Program for some details about Seattle's future bored tunnel. Greeman asked about diameter, length, location, capacity, cost, method of tunneling, and ground conditions. Lenz provided some background information as well as the answers to his questions. She also provided Greeman with two graphics for the magazine. Greeman plans to submit his article at the end of the week.
